THE BAY ST. LOUIS FIRE DEPARTMENT BATTLES A BLAZE AT BREEDEN PLACE ON MONDAY AFTERNOON. THE FIRE WAS APPARENTLY CAUSED BY A LIGHTNING STRIKE DURING MONDAY'S THUNDERSTORM.

The Bay St. Louis Fire Department battled a blaze at a home in the city's Breeden Place neighborhood late Monday afternoon.

The home belonged to surgeon Dr. David Rimmer, III and his family.

"From what I understand, they were not at home when the fire started," Deputy Fire Chief Ronald Avery said. "We do know it was weather-related."

A lightning strike apparently caused the blaze, Avery said.

Firefighters from both Bay stations responded to the call, which came in a little before 5 p.m. Monday, Avery said, and found the fire fully involved when they arrived on scene. The Waveland Fire Department also sent an engine to the scene as back-up.

"The firefighters did a good job on putting the fire out and nobody was injured," Avery said. However, he said, the family dog did not make it.

Hancock man extradited from La. to face judge in 2016 murder case

BY STACEY CATO
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Nearly two years to the day after a Hancock County man's remains were discovered along the wood line of a dead-end road in Waveland, the man suspected in his murder has been sent back to Mississippi to face a judge.

According to jail records, 28-year-old Drew Daniel Bourgeois, a.k.a. "Creep," was extradited from a New Orleans prison Friday booked into the Hancock County Jail late Friday afternoon, awaiting an initial court appearance.

Bourgeois is the suspect in the murder of local resident Jeremy Fountain, whose body was found in the woods near Chesapeake and Coral Streets in Shoreline Park. He was first arrested for Fountain's murder in Metairie on July 14, 2016 by the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Department. The warrant was signed by Hancock County Judge P.J. Mauffray.

Hancock County Deputy Sheriff Don Bass said Bourgeois was served with another warrant upon his arrival Friday and was being held in protective custody at the Hancock County Jail until his initial court appearance for the murder charges. He is also being held for a violation for the Mississippi Department of Corrections and for another agency.

Waveland Police have been working the case in conjunction with the New Orleans Police Department.

According to a press release issued around the time of Bourgeois' first arrest, Waveland Police Chief David Allen said Bourgeois is facing numerous charges in New Orleans, including Possession of Schedule II Narcotic with Intent to

Supervisors hear about Team SALT's Beach Outfalls pilot project

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors on Monday heard a presentation from Allison Anderson about the SALT Beach Outfalls pilot project.

Anderson's firm unabridged Architecture led Team SALT, which stands for Sustainable Active Landscapes Team. Other team members included landscape architect Walter Meyer of Local Office Landscape in Brooklyn, NY; The Land Trust for Mississippi Coastal Plain; storm water engineer David Williams; retired rear admiral and director of the USM

Hydrographic Science Center at Stennis Space Center Ken Barbor; Professor of Marine Science Paleotempestology at USM Davin Wallace; and Bryon Griffith, a consultant at Dewberry.

Team SALT's proposal was chosen as one of three pilot projects during the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality's Beach Outfalls Challenge last year.

According to MDEQ, there are 200 beach outfalls along Mississippi's beaches, which provide an important storm water function.

Cedar Point marker ceremony this Saturday

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

There will be a ceremony this Saturday, July 21, to dedicate a Magnolia marker at Bay St. Louis' scenic Cedar Point.

"Cedar Point played an important role in the development of Bay St. Louis," Dot Larroux Kersanac -- who led the crusade to get the marker -- said last week. Kersanac is a Cedar Point native and former teacher and respiratory therapist.

"I started researching information about Cedar Point before Hurricane Katrina, and it wasn't necessarily in the direction of getting a historical marker," Kersanac said Tuesday. "It eventually just kind of evolved."

Kersanac said getting the Mississippi Department of Archives and History to designate Cedar Point as a historic district took some doing.

"The information was originally sent to Jackson in March of '17," she said.

CEDAR POINT PEERLESS OYSTER PICKERS

"It takes awhile. ... You keep submitting the wording that you'd like, you present all the historic information about an area, you send that in first.

"Then they let you know whether or not you get the marker, then they give you a guideline Then you work on the wording. Then you present that, you put the whole thing in a package ... It's a long drawn-out process."

Kersanac said the Cedar Point marker will be a "Magnolia" marker, meaning the area will now be on the state and national registry of historic places.

The marker was paid for by local donors, not the state, Kersanac said.

"Located in the northern part of Bay St. Louis, the area known as Cedar Point developed in the late 1880s when G.W. Dunbar and Sons built a seafood cannery near the end of Dunbar Avenue," according to the marker. "In 1909, the Peerless Oyster Co. opened at the present-day site of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club. Other structures located here include the St.

Joseph Chapel, Taylor School, later Bay-Waveland Garden Club, and the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, all destroyed by Hurricane Katrina." The dedication is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday, July 21, at Commodore Park across from the BWYC, with a reception to follow at the historical society. Everyone is welcome.

Deer Park man badly burned in propane explosion

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

The family of a Deer Park man has set up a GoFundMe account to aid his recovery after he was caught in a propane explosion.

Kevin Burlette, 63, suffered third-degree burns over more than 10 percent of his body in the explosion on Sunday, July 8, his son Ben Burlette said.

"A little over a month ago, my uncle had a stroke and went into assisted living," Ben Burlette said. "My parents went in to clean up his house. Apparently, the stove got hit by the front door when it exploded," Ben said. "My dad got out ... they thought they could take care of him because the burns didn't look that bad at first, but then he passed out."

The elder Burlette didn't smell any propane and lit a scented candle in the house to help combat the odor caused because the refrigerator had malfunctioned and all the food inside had spoiled.

"My dad had another fellow with him and he was outside -- he actually got hit by the front door when it exploded," Ben said. "My dad got out ... they thought they could take care of him because the burns didn't look that bad at first, but then he passed out."

Kevin Burlette was rushed to Highland Community Hospital in Picayune, then transferred to the burn center at University Medical Center New Orleans.

Ben said his injuries will require multiple skin grafts.

What does our future hold?

As I've said before, I'm worried about what the future holds for our younger generations here in the United States of America.

To me, it seems that young people these days do not have the same stability of family that my generation had.

When I was a child in the Depression-era, I knew of only one couple who had divorced other people to begin their "second marriage," although they weren't really married, just living together. Now that's not to say it didn't happen more often, but you sure didn't here about it in those days. My mother divorced my father when I was in my early 20s, but that was really caused by my father's drinking habits, which had taken over his life. I'm sure that my father's drinking was the main reason why I never became a drinker. I've had a drink or two over the years, but only a very, very few.

My brothers and I were taught very early on – both by our mother and the brothers at St.

Stanislaus – that we must be dependable. That's something that I believe isn't taught as much, any more.

I have talked to more than a thousand youngsters over the years and one of the things I'm always tried to impress upon them is that its very important to be dependable.

Whatever you do in life, whether you work for others or are self-employed, if you aren't dependable, you won't be successful.

I realize that we are in a changing world, but that does not eliminate the need for dependability. I don't care whether you're rich or poor, people need to know they can count on you.

Today, it seems there are many people who are looking for free hand-outs. Everyone needs assistance from time to time, but hand-outs can be over-used.

When I was a kid, when my brothers and I wanted something, we had to get out and work for it.

I will never forget when the 1947 hurricane struck the Hancock County area.

My family and I were lucky to just lose the roof on our home. There were many others who lost their entire homes and/or businesses.

Unless they were well insured, they had to pay for all the repairs out of their own pockets.

Things changed somewhat after Hurricane Betsy struck New Orleans, and then Camille devastated the Coast, and then, of course, Katrina. We were very fortunate that the government came to our aid after Katrina, but there have been so many disaster nationwide in the past few years, I'm afraid that at some point, there won't be any more funding to help people rebuild. Something has to change and really do not know the answer.

American needs to be a great country to survive. The past is littered with the remains of formerly great nations.

What does the future hold for America?

Diamond anniversary plus five in Broussard, LA

Seventy-five years ago, Harold Robert Perry was entering his final year of theology at Saint Augustine Major Seminary in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi. At the age of 13, I was just beginning my first year of studies at Saint Augustine Minor Seminary in September, 1943. Homesick after some hours of my first day there, I sat down on the steps of the auditorium and cried myself to sleep. Evidently alerted by someone, Harold approached me and we talked about my homesickness. Buoyed by his words, I got up, walked around and was soon running wild with the other boys. That was my first and only instance of homesickness in the seminary.

How many others did Harold help along the way? He was ordained to the priesthood on January 6, 1944. He was the 26th African American to be ordained a Catholic priest. Unbelievably, there was just over a score of U.S. black priests at that time, compared to about 250 now, most of them not members of the Society of the Divine Word. There are also well over 400 black permanent deacons now.

His first assignment was as associate pastor at Immaculate Heart Of Mary Church in Lafayette until 1948, when he was transferred to Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Saint Martinville. Next, he served at Saint Peter Church in Pine Bluff, Arkansas 1949-51 and at Saint Gabriel Church in Mound Bayou, Mississippi 1951-52, before returning to Louisiana in 1952 as founding pastor of Saint Joseph Church in Broussard, Louisiana. Thus, sixty-five years ago, during his six years as pastor, he built the church, rectory and school. Reflecting on Father Harold Perry's historic pastorate at Saint Joseph Church in Broussard in 1952, I penned the following reflections on his ministry March 30, 2009.

"Il semble comme nous!" (He looks like us).

With recognition and pleasure, the Creole-speaking gens de couleur (colored people) of the townlet of Broussard (circa 10,000), Louisiana proudly commented on the image of Jesus Christ con- creted in relief against the wall above the front entrance of their spanking new church.

"He looks like us!" they exulted, much to the delight of their new pas- tor, Rev. Harold Robert Perry, S.V.D. After all, years ahead of his time, it was a bold statement back in 1952 for him to dare depict Jesus with obvious- ly Negroid features. As I introduced a parish revival there at Saint Joseph

BRANDING TIME ON THE RANCH

Fertilizing Forages Can Provide Deer Food

Most people think that during the summer there is an ample supply of browse for deer to eat. Many people think that since the sweetgums, hickories, and oaks are green again, deer will be healthy. Everything that is green is not food for deer and may not meet a deer's daily nutritional needs.

Deer are similar to people in the manner in which they feed. There are certain foods that we love to eat, those that we will eat, and those that we would eat only if we were starving. The trees above are in the last category—just good enough to fill them up. If you hunt in an area that shows a lot of browsing on these trees, your herd is probably in need of man- agement.

Several foods that fit into the middle choice category are American beauty- berry, dogwood, elm, maple, and magnolia. These species provide moderate nutrition but your deer herd will have a hard time maintaining proper nutrition on these foods.

One of the reasons these low and moderate foods become a main ingredient in deer diets is due to over- browsing on first choice foods. A reduction in the number of animals of the deer herd is usually needed when this type of over- browsing occurs.

There are many desir- able foods for deer. These include honeysuckle, yel- low jasmine, greenbriar, and blackberry.

If you've read many arti- cles about food plots or if you farm or like gardening, you may be aware of the nutrient deficiencies in soils in Mississippi. Calcium, and more impor- tantly, phosphorus, are the primary elements for prop- er antler growth and are both generally low in our soils. Soil tests are an inexpensive method to determine nutrient needs. Applications of essential nutrients can produce a hid- den food plot that only you and the deer are aware of.

Fertilized vegetation, such as the first choice items described above, grows more vigorously, are more palatable, and will be visited more.

However, with fertilizer, more is not always better. One nutrient that is often recommended for food plots is lime. You can and should apply lime to planted and native foods so the fertiliz- er will work properly. Again, a soil test will help.

You will often see a benefit of better native veg- etation growth on the edge of food plots due to the extra sunlight hitting their edges.

Direct sunlight is the key to good forage produc- tion. With that in mind, you should try to grow your vegetation in areas that are more open, such as, roadsides, right-of- ways, and newly thinned plantations. A little fertiliz- er in these spots will increase plant growth and provide the nutrition required by deer.

Diamondhead Opens 2 New Kayak Launches - Ribbon Cutting Set for Friday, July 20 at 10 a.m.

SEA COAST ECHO

The City of Diamondhead will host the official ribbon cutting with the Hancock Chamber of Commerce to announce the completion of two new city kayak launches. Residents are invited to join the Mayor and members of the City Council and other officials on Friday, July 20th at 10am at the Vaught Circle Kayak Launch, adjacent to the Diamondhead Marina just off Interstate 10. Residents and visitors can also enjoy a second launch now open at 94197 Bayou Drive.

This project is 100% grant funded, which began in 2014 when Mayor Tommy Schafer made application for funding. Funds for this project were appropriated by the Mississippi Legislature, 2016 Tidelands Trust Fund, through the Secretary of State, Delbert Hosemann, and the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources. A total Tidelands Trust Fund grant of $369,750 was approved in January 2015. The Vaught Circle Kayak launch was constructed using Sport Fish Restoration and Boating Trust Fund derived from excise taxes on sport fishing equipment and matched with the Tidelands funds.

The City built the project following guidelines from the MS Department of Marine Resources and Federal agencies to insure impacts to wetlands, endangered species and habitat and the environment were minimal. The city's intent is to keep the environment in its natural state and let residents and visitors enjoy the natural beauty and wetland areas while traversing the kayak trail. Kayakers will be able to launch at either site and kayak 9.5 miles down Rotten Bayou / Jourdan River areas. Both park areas are open daily from 6am—8:30pm.

Church in 2014, I was pleased to learn that many recalled having said that at their church's birth.

Since his ordination on January 6, 1944, Father Perry had cut his pastoral teeth under the tutelage of the first four black SVDs ordained in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi May 23, 1934: Anthony Bourges, Maurice Rousseve, Vincent Smith and Francis Wade.

Taught well by the Famous Four, Harold, a native of Lake Charles 83 miles to the west, was now on his own in the middle of Acadiana, surrounded by sugar cane as far as the eye could see, plus Louisiana yams, soybeans and other favorite staples.

Named Rector of his Alma Mater, Saint Augustine Divine Word Seminary in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi in 1958, Father Perry was elected Provincial Superior of the SVD Southern Province of the U.S.A., in 1964. He was ordained a bishop for the Archdiocese of New Orleans by Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, the Apostolic Nuncio to the U.S., on January 6, 1966 in the Cathedral-Basilica of Saint Louis, King of France.

Led by Father Thomas James, S.V.D.,

the current pastor of Saint Joseph Church in Broussard, Louisiana, the parishioners of Saint Joseph Church hosted a Founder's Day Prayer Breakfast of Gratitude at the Bishop Perry Learning Center of the church on Saturday, July 14, 2018 at 9:00 a.m. Saints Joseph/Anthony Gospel choir fired all with Lead Me Guide Me, keying a 30-minute prayer service of gratitude that segued into breakfast. Another song preceded the ritual burning of Petitions written by the folks.

A song led into the presentation of a glass-etched portrait of Bishop Harold Perry to his family and another to the people of Saint Joseph Church, then remarks by Doctor James Perry, D.D.S., the youngest and only-surviving Bishop Perry's sibling. Guest speaker, Perry cousin Father Jerome LeDoux, S.V.D., addressed the group. Father Thomas James offered a joyous closing prayer of thanksgiving.

For the adventurous, a trolley car toured Holy Rosary Institute, Avery Island and Vermilionville where 34 pickup musicians thrilled us with guitars, violins, etc.

Bishop Charles Michael Jarrell and two concelebrants led a festive Mass of thanksgiving with a full house in Saint Joseph Church at 10:00 a.m., Sunday morning. A light closing repast in the Bishop Perry Learning Center concluded the festivities.

He is also facing another murder charge there for the death of Hancock County native Matthew Spooner, whose body was found in a home in the 2100 block of North Miro Street in New Orleans just days before Fountain's body was discovered in Waveland. Police say the two killings are linked.

Spooner, who grew up in Leetown, had been staying at the house in New Orleans for a short time before he was killed, family members said. Fountain and Spooner were friends and members of the Simon City Royals, but both men -- along with other SCR associates -- had branched out, forming a new group called the "Sip City Royals," with hopes of moving away from criminal activities and making a positive impact on the community, friends said.

outfalls currently act only as conduits, transporting storm water from communities on the coast to the Mississippi Sound with very little treatment of the water or ecosystem service delivery functions, which impacts the water quality in the Mississippi Sound," a 2017 release from MDEQ states. "Quantities of nutrients and pollutants are found in significantly higher concentrations in the water near the end of the beach outfalls."

Anderson said the location of Team SALT's project is the channel between St. Charles and Ramoneda Streets in Bay St. Louis.

"The project will be 100 percent funded by the BP money through one of the water quality improvement programs," Anderson said. "The proposal is to take out a portion of the channel, we would leave the portion under the roadway, we would leave the portion within 50 feet of the roadway so there would be no change to the pedestrian multi-use pathway along that area."

Anderson said the goal is to restore the title estuary to its original form.

"We're trying to do this in a way that incorporates vegetation, armored dunes and to slow cool and filter the water through there."

MDEQ will administer the projects, she said.

In addition to sculpting the channel with the dunes, Anderson said, there would also be portions of "living shoreline," including oyster reefs and areas for fish to swim. It would also serve to protect the title estuary from storms, she added.

"We really want it to be a visually appealing place, a little green oasis along the beach," Anderson said. "We want it to be a place where people can stop a little bit and understand what we can do."

Anderson said there will also be graphics on site to explain the system.

"We are also working with the inland property owner to do some improvements on their side as well," she said.

Anderson said the county's beach monitoring station has had an advisory, "basically every other week for the past 10 years."

"So we've got to do something at this place," she said. "It's one of the most highly visited parts of the beach because of the parking lot at Washington Street. And when visitors come and they see a beach advisory, this doesn't reflect well on Hancock County. This could really make a difference and we're hoping it will."

Anderson added that the site is one of the "largest watersheds in Bay St. Louis."

She said there are also efforts under way to coordinate volunteer efforts for managing the site.

Anderson said MDEQ will have the money by the first of August. After that, Anderson said, they plan to apply for a pilot project architecture and engineering design fees.

She estimates a start for design will be around December or January and a construction start date in the fall of 2019.

"During this project, we will have public engagement and would like to get input from you guys about what that would look like," Anderson said.

Anderson said that Team SALT's project was designed with no mechanical elements.

"We went with a very different approach with no moving parts, no filters to change, nothing that feels like it would be constant, monthly maintenance," Anderson said. "We believe that the maintenance will be picking trash out of it and making sure that the vegetation has what it needs to survive. We're hoping that a significant portion of that will be done by volunteers. It's really designed to mimic the natural condition."

In other action:

The board approved a motion to purchase 170 radios through Motorola Solutions -- as recommended by Hancock County Emergency Management Agency Director Brian Adam -- for the full amount of $379,440. At the June 29 meeting, Adam told the board that the majority of the radios used by emergency personnel were coming to end of life.

The next board meeting is scheduled for Aug. 6 at 9 a.m.

The State of the County address is scheduled for Aug. 29 at 6 p.m. at the Hancock Performing Arts Center.

FORMER SSC GRIDIRON COACH WILL WINDHAM CLIMBS DIVISION I COACHING LADDER TO KENT STATE

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

We have all heard about the life of the highly recruited student-athlete and the rigors that they endure at a top tier Division school, no matter the sport. What we tend to forget, as fans and followers, is the life of the coach behind those athletes and the hundreds of thousands of student-athletes at the next level.

Will Windham, a graduate of New Hope High School in Columbus, ventured off to nearby Mississippi State University to earn his degree in math in the mid 2000s.

Upon graduating from MSU, he secured his first teaching job at Saint Stanislaus College in 2009 under then-head coach Forrest Williams.

Windham's coaching career started off on the right foot as he helped lead the Rock-a-chaws to the Class 4A state championship.

In 2009, SSC was 14-1 overall with their only loss coming to Jackson Prep 21-20. In that first year, Windham, experienced winning the Division 8-4A title, the Class 4A South State championship and the Class 4A state championship with a 35-16 victory over Lafayette County.

He would coach a future Mississippi All-Star in Taylor Thompson on the defensive line and witness state records set by Mr. Football and MSU signee Dylan Favre and Krisjon Wilkerson. Suffice it to say, the bug had bit Windham.

He stayed one more season at SSC in 2010 where the Rocks would go 9-4 and bow out of the state playoffs with a 27-21 OT loss to Mendenhall in the third round.

Windham recalled, "My first job as a teacher and coach was at SSC. It really gave me a unique experience being around quality men on the coaching staff and student athletes that would run through walls for you. While I was there those two years, it helped set the stage for me as a young coach climbing the ladder."

In 2011, Windham

returned to Starkville to work as a graduate assistant for Dan Mullen and the Bulldogs at Mississippi State University.

While there is a tremendous amount of turnover in coaching, there is a great deal of networking that occurs in the fraternity of coaching.

Windham added, "Returning to Mississippi State gave me my first look at collegiate coaching. I was able to work under Dan Mullen who is now the head coach at Florida, Chris Wilson who is now the defensive line coach for the Philadelphia Eagles and Geoff Collins who now serves as the head coach at Temple University. I was very fortunate to work with some great football minds in my very first collegiate coaching position."

Windham stayed at MSU from 2011-13. The Bulldogs had a winning season each year going 7-6, 8-5, and 7-6. They advanced to a bowl game each season giving Windham a taste of postseason success, as well.

The Bulldogs advanced to the Music City Bowl in Nashville in 2011 where they defeated Wake Forest 23-7. In 2012 MSU was selected for the Gator Bowl against Northwestern where they lost 34-20. In 2013 the Bulldogs advanced to Liberty Bowl in Memphis against Rice whom they throttled 44-7.

While Windham was back at MSU, he earned his masters degree and married his wife, Whitney.

In 2014, Windham moved to State College, PA, to work for head coach James Franklin at Penn State University as a defensive quality control coach. He helped lead a resurgent Nittany Lions program still reeling from the Jerry Sandusky turmoil to a 7-6 overall record and a berth in the Pinstripe Bowl against Boston College. The Nittany Lions won the game 31-30 in overtime.

After spending just one season in Happy Valley, Windham wound up at Davidson College in North Carolina in 2015. It was at the Division I FCS school in the Pioneer League where Windham got his first taste of on-field coaching as the defensive line coach.

WILL WINDHAM, A FORMER SSC ASSISTANT COACH GOES THROUGH DRILLS WITH THE INSIDE LINEBACKERS DURING SPRING TRAINING AT KENT STATE UNIVERSITY.

The Wildcats finished the season at 2-9 overall and it would be the lone losing season of Windham's young coaching career

For the past two seasons, Windham has been at home in the Deep South working as a defensive quality control coach for Kirby Smart and the Georgia Bulldogs.

In 2015, Windham helped Smart take the Bulldogs to an 8-5 overall record and a 31-23 victory over TCU in the Liberty Bowl. In 2016, Windham and the Bulldogs advanced to the mountain top of coaching with a 28-7 victory over the Auburn Tigers in the SEC Championship game, a 2OT 54-48 victory over the Oklahoma Sooners in the Rose Bowl and national semi-final, and a 26-23 OT loss to Alabama in the national championship game in Atlanta.

Following the national championship game in January, Windham signed with Kent State University and new head coach Sean Lewis in Kent, Ohio, to become the Golden Flashes inside linebackers coach. Kent State is a member of the Mid-American Conference with Akron, Bowling Green, State University of New York at Buffalo, Miami University, Ohio University, Ball State, Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Northern Illinois, Toledo and Western Michigan.

Windham stated, "I have had the opportunity to learn under some of the greatest minds in football. Now, the lessons I have learned under them I can tweak to fit my personality and philosophy and apply that here at Kent State University."

Windham has spent the last seven years being a sponge and soaking up all that he learned from many of the game's best strategists. Now, he has jumped feet first into the world of Division I football as a position coach complete with all the inherent responsibilities plus the rabid world of recruiting.

Windham talked about how high school coaching and collegiate coaching are not that different, "The biggest difference between the two is the amount of time of being around football. It is 24/7 all the time. In high school, coaches not only spend time trying to coach up players and create game plans, they also have responsibilities in the classroom. On the collegiate level, I talk football all day every day. Then, you go out and recruit the players that best fit your style and create relationships with them."

While many coaches would love to talk ball all day, the recruiting game is just as big as game-day strategy, if not bigger. A program has to have all the right pieces or success is hard to come by. And, recruiting is an ever-changing process. Windham added, "A player is going to go where they feel they can play at a quick turnaround. A family wants their son to go where they are comfortable with how their child is being raised for the next 4-5 years. It is a delicate balance and relationships have to be made quickly, as well as, strongly. There has to be a bond with not only the player but also the family. These players become a part of your family because you spend so much time with them on the field and off."

Windham has not only grown as a coach since his time at SSC, he has grown in terms of how he views it as a life's work. He commented, "As I prepare myself to work with young men in a daily regimen, I plan to bring with me something I learned from Kirby Smart these last couple of years which is, 'How one does anything is how one does everything.' That is not just a lesson for the football field, that is a lesson that rings true in any workplace and any household."

Windham has always had dreams of having his own program one day and those dreams are still alive and burning inside. He stated, "My job as a coach has never really changed. As a grad assistant to quality control to position coach, I always had the responsibility to make the job of the person above me easier. That is how you work your way up the ladder in any business. I have had the same responsibility since I started, only the titles have changed. I think each coach strives to have their own program. But, right now, my job is teach and model to the inside linebackers at Kent State University how to do their job the very best that they can, not cut corners and help Kent State advance to Detroit for the MAC championship. And, then we take the next step as a program, whatever the expectations may be."

These last seven years coaching on college football's biggest stage have taken Windham all over the country. He has earned several rings over his many stops but it is that first ring left a mark. Windham ended, "The ring we earned at SSC was my first one as a coach. It will always hold a special place to me. It gave me the hunger to work for more!"

Will and Whitney have a new addition to the Windham clan as Tyler was born on April 27, 2018. The clan will return to Mississippi on Saturday, September 22nd when the Golden Flashes invade Oxford to take on the Ole Miss Rebels. It is a stadium that Windham is 0-2 as a coach having lost in 2012 41-24 while at MSU and 45-14 in 2016 while at Georgia.

This year the day is special for two reasons. The first reason is simply because it is this writer's 48th birthday. The second is because I get to see a good friend coach on the field for the first time since 2010, no matter the outcome.

Prof. Hill's Think System is an acoustic string trio that performs a variety of popular songs in folk, bluegrass, and Dixieland styles. The group is made up of Steven Harper (guitar, dobro, banjo, mandolin); Ben Harper (guitar); and Daniel Munyan (bass).

The group likes to subtitle itself "The Time-Traveling Strong Band," owing to its repertoire of modern and old-timey favorites.

The band takes its name from the Broadway show and movie The Music Man, in which "Professor"

Harold Hill forms a boys' band using his revolutionary "Think System." Professor Hill's method is all about the spirit and fun of performing. Prof. Hill's Think System approaches their music with similar spirit, fun, and excitement.

Steven Harper, of Heather and the Monkey King, has been performing for over 30 years on guitar and various other string instruments. His brother, Ben Harper, is best known for his work with the Celtic band "Mithril." Daniel Munyan, a former student of Steven's, is currently majoring in music at Pearl River Community College.

5:00 PM – Visual Artist Randy Hall began his photography journey in 2008 when he discovered the great joy of being out with his camera on a calm morning watching a sunrise or birds and wildlife start their day. To be able to capture or at least witness the sunrise, sunset, the pose or action of wildlife and stop time in a fraction of a second and share what he sees with someone else is challenging but rewarding.

Randy won "Best of Show" at Art in the Pass this year and was selected to be at the Three Rivers Art and Craft show in Covington, LA this November.

HemFest Adds Art Auction to its Festivities

SEA COAST ECHO

Local artist Scharonne Herrington brings his signature bold, bigger than life artistic talent to this year's HemFest when Herrington presents his largest work to date.

Herrington, an artist known for his bold colors and leading pathways from one world to another, brings us straight into the streets of Pamplona, Spain running with the bulls with a backdrop scene of large magnitude which sets the tone for party goers. This large work was built by Bob Martin for Herrington to use as his canvas. The work is 8 feet tall by 8 feet wide. Martin met with Herrington to discuss the details and preliminary plans were drawn up and the backdrop was built with painters drop cloth serving as a canvas which was prepped by Martin. The painting was completed by Herrington in The Dragon Fire Studio on Nicholson Ave. at night and on the week ends.

According to Herrington "This large pallet gave me the freedom to bring the depth of this scene to its full potential while these colors allowed me to bring the energy of the Spanish Street. I hope to do more paintings of this size. It has opened up new opportunities for me and my art."

After the backdrop was

Dr. Rhonda Clark named Superintendent of Catholic Schools

SEA COAST ECHO

Dr. Rhonda Parkinson Clark, assistant superintendent of Catholic schools for the Diocese of Biloxi, will move into the superintendent position July 30, replacing Dr. Michael Ladner, who will retire effective July 26. Dr. Ladner has served as superintendent since May 2005. “Dr. Ladner was instrumental in reopening and rebuilding our schools following Hurricane Katrina,” said Bishop Louis F. Kihneman, III, bishop of Biloxi. “I thank him for his 13 years of dedicated service to the Diocese of Biloxi and our Catholic Schools.” Dr. Clark has served as associate superintendent of Catholic schools in the Diocese of Biloxi for 10 years. During that time, she assisted in the creation of strategic plans, organized professional development for school leaders and teachers, and held the lead in the two national accreditation visits. She earned a Ph.D. in educational administration and supervision from the University of Southern Mississippi, and holds a master’s degree in educational leadership and a bachelor’s degree in marketing/business education. Among other duties, Dr. Clark serves on the Mississippi State Board of AdvancED. She is a member of Nativity BVM Cathedral, where she serves as a lector and Eucharistic minister. Her son, Stephen Clark, attended St. James Catholic Elementary School and graduated with honors from St. Patrick Catholic High School in 2016. He is a political science/pre-law junior at Mississippi State University. “Dr. Clark is committed to the mission of our Catholic schools, which provide an education based on Christ’s teaching and Catholic values which focus on the formation of strong moral character, the furtherance of academic excellence, the inspiration to serve others, and the motivation for students to achieve their God-given potential with the ultimate goal of forming intentional disciples who follow Christ, live according to his teachings and proclaim him to others,” Bishop Kihneman said. “I thank her for her willingness to serve in this vital role and I look forward to working with her in the years ahead.” For her part, Dr. Clark said she is looking forward to serving as superintendent. “I am honored to be named as Superintendent of Education for the Catholic Diocese of Biloxi and acknowledge that our wonderful Catholic schools are built on the commitment and sacrifice of many who have served before. We recognize the obligation we have for academic excellence, community service, and forming intentional disciples,” she said. “It was a privilege to serve as Associate Superintendent under Dr. Mike Ladner - who was so instrumental in reopening and rebuilding our schools following Hurricane Katrina. I also thank Sr. Joanne Cozzi and Dr. Lanny Acosta, the two previous Superintendents, for their leadership. As the fourth Superintendent of Education in the Diocese of Biloxi, it is my goal to work with our principals, families, pastors, parish communities, and all stakeholders to continue the important ministry of Catholic education in South Mississippi.” For information about The Catholic Diocese of Biloxi Department of Education, visit www.biloxidiocese.org/education.

The government’s business is your business.

And Mississippians count on their newspapers to keep apprised of public notice advertising.

Half of Mississippi adults recall reading or seeing public notice advertising in a local or state newspaper.

And almost half (46%) of adults who have seen public notice advertising prefer to receive them in a printed newspaper, much higher than any other source.

Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.

According to a 2013 Advertising and Media Use Survey*, legal ads in printed newspapers have a much higher credibility than other media.

Over 1.5 million Mississippians read their local newspaper. Whether in print, online or on the go, newspapers are the leading source of information for Mississippi.

There is power in print.

Smart food choices help seniors stay healthy

BY MS. SUSAN M. COLLINS-SMITH
MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

RAYMOND, Miss. -- Healthy eating is important at every age, but older adults should pay special attention to their diets.

As adults age, several physical changes can affect how the body digests food and absorbs nutrients, said Pamela Redwine, Mississippi State University Extension agent in Yalobusha County.

"Senior adults need to make sure they eat enough fiber and drink enough water," she said. "With age, the sense of thirst often diminishes, so seniors shouldn't rely on thirst as their primary reminder to drink fluids."

Depending on gender, older adults should drink nine to 12 half cups of water daily. To easily meet that goal, fill a container with at least nine cups of water and drink it throughout the day, Redwine said.

As with thirst, older adults sometimes also experience declining appetites that lead to weight loss, Extension health specialist David Buys said.

"Too much weight loss can be a signal that something else is going on in the body that should be checked by a health care provider," he said. "Seniors, their families and caregivers should watch for any excessive weight loss."

Many times, seniors want to keep cooking simple and convenient.

"When people are preparing meals for one or two, they may default to easier foods that are less healthy," Buys said. "Instead, they want to have healthier foods, so it is important for older adults to plan their meals in advance."

"It's never too late to make healthy changes to your diet, such as eating more whole foods and fruits and vegetables instead of processed and refined foods."

Meal planning can help older adults ensure they get all of the nutrients they need. With age comes slower metabolism, and people require fewer calories. But nutrient needs remain about the same, Redwine said.

"This means seniors need to make smart choices with plenty of variety from the five food groups," she said. "If the budget doesn't allow for a lot of fresh produce, buy seasonal fruits and vegetables or stock up on canned, dried and frozen when they are on sale."

Redwine advises people to buy reduced-sodium canned vegetables, reduced-sugar dried fruits and canned fruits in their own juices with no added sugar.

Meat, poultry and fish may not always fit in the budget, but getting creative in the kitchen can make these protein sources last longer.

"Try combining lean meat, poultry and fish with other ingredients in a casserole dish so that a small amount goes further," Redwine said. "Eggs, legumes and peanut butter also are good sources of protein. If chewing these foods is an issue, try steaming or baking firmer vegetables and fruits and chopping meats into small pieces."

Older adults should be vigilant about food safety. Lower immune systems, medical conditions and some medications can affect how well the body fights off infection, which puts seniors at higher risk for contracting food-borne illness, Redwine said.

To avoid illness, follow basic food safety guidelines when handling, preparing and consuming foods. Wash hands and surfaces often. Separate raw meat, poultry, seafood and eggs from cooked and ready-to-eat foods in your grocery cart, grocery bags and refrigerator. Cook meats to safe temperatures and confirm with a thermometer. Refrigerate meat, poultry, eggs, seafood, other perishables and leftovers within two hours of purchasing or cooking. Never thaw food on the counter.

Certain chronic health conditions and medications can affect a person's diet. Buys recommends that all seniors communicate with their health care providers about their diets, but especially if there are special circumstances.

"Don't be afraid to ask for a consult with a registered dietitian if you have concerns about what to eat, and if you see a noticeable change in your taste or appetite after starting a new medicine, talk to your pharmacist," Buys said.
